

Abstract of the Invention

A presser foot control system for a sewing station for sewing heavy gauge or thick materials includes an actuator for selectively applying and relieving an additional compression force to the presser foot of the sewing station for compressing and feeding the material being sewn to enable engagement and pickup of the threads carried by the needle by a looper of the sewing station.